

Food Liability Release

University of San Diego Hospitality and Dining Services is responsible for the oversight of all food and beverage service provided. As a part of the university's commitment to sustainability, Hospitality and Dining Services has agreed to participate in a pilot program by which rescued food from select catered events will be offered as donations to individuals who have signed an approved Food Liability Release.

A signed and approved Food Liability Release, relinquishes University of San Diego Hospitality and Dining Services from any and all liability associated with food and beverage served at the approved event.

University of San Diego Hospitality and Dining Services shall approve and document specifically what rescued foods following a catered event are deemed safe and in sufficient quantity to be offered to the campus community. Any donated foods will be offered in limited quantity and for a specific length of time following a catered event, so there are no guarantees as to how many recipients may be accommodated each time.

USD makes no allergen-free claims regarding any rescued food donation. In signing this release, individuals acknowledge that any rescued food may have come into contact with, or have been produced in a facility which also produces milk, eggs, peanuts, tree nuts (walnuts, almonds, pecans, hazelnuts/filberts, pistachios, cashews, coconuts, pine nuts, macadamia nuts, and/or Brazil nuts), fish, shellfish (crab, crawfish, lobster, shrimp, mussels, and/or oysters), wheat, and / or soybeans.

Proof of this signed release of liability must be available to the event coordinator at the time when rescued food is being offered in order to receive the donated food.

Release of Liability by checking this box / sign and date below:

I, _____, understand that any rescued food being offered following a USD catered event has been approved by University of San Diego Hospitality and Dining Services, who has assessed that the donated food meets food safety guidelines and at the time of donation has been deemed to be safe and wholesome for immediate consumption.

I, _____, hereby release University of San Diego Hospitality and Dining Services from any and all liability related to the contents, preparation or safety of foods provided for the above event.
